

TAFT MAKES INITIAL SPEECH ON FARMING

PRESIDENT TAFT DELIVERED FIRST ADDRESS OF WESTERN TRIP AT SYRACUSE FAIR GROUNDS.

URGES CONSERVATION

Improved Methods of Farming Also Sought by Executive and Statistics Are Quoted to Prove Points.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 16.—President Taft arrived at Syracuse early today to remain until 3:40 this afternoon. At the state fair here he delivered the first address of his western trip. At the breakfast table the president made a brief speech.

President Taft in his fair grounds speech spoke of the necessity of improved methods of farming and urged the conservation of the soil. To support this he quoted statistics to show the acreage of farms had increased but four per cent in ten years while the population had increased twenty per cent.

He also pointed out that the value of farms had enormously increased, and that to maintain their value, farming must be done intelligently.

Address Is Given.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 16.—A discussion of the activities of the Department of Agriculture and of the opportunities for progress open to farmers formed the subject of the address delivered by President Taft at the state fair grounds today. The president said in part:

"We are spending $15,000,000 a year in the maintenance of a department of agriculture and we might as well face the truth and realize that this expense, instead of decreasing, is bound to increase. I have given much attention to the matter of economy and efficiency in government. While I do not mean to say that the present department of agriculture, in the work which it is doing, might not be made to do the same work for less money by a closer built organization and greater care in its expenditures, I am confident from looking into the future of the department to the pressing need for expansion of its work, that an increase in the appropriations each year for that department may be and ought to be expected in the interest of the government."

"The amount of information which the farmers have received and acted upon, in their farming business, from the bureau of plant industry, from the bureau of soils and from the bureau of animal industry, in the department of agriculture, can hardly be overestimated, and the dependence of the welfare of the country on the continued spread of this information for the improvement of agriculture ought to be emphasized whenever opportunity arises."

"We have today in this country, in continental United States, about 1,000,000,000 acres of land. Of this, 873,000,000 are included in the acreage of farms. In the last ten years that acreage did not increase more than 25,000,000, or a little over 4 per cent. In that same time our population has increased 20 per cent. Of the 873,000,000 acres, 177,000,000 are improved farm land. The 873,000,000 included wood land and unimproved land. The improved land in farms has increased about 63,000,000 in ten years, or some 15 per cent, but this, it will be seen, is not equal to the increase in population. Now, if our population increases as rapidly as it has heretofore, we shall in fifty years have upwards of 200,000,000 of people in this country to support on this 873,000,000 acres, much of which is probably not capable of producing a great deal. There are some 50,000,000 acres of swamp and land that can be drained, and there are 25,000,000 acres of land that can be irrigated; but with all these, it is perfectly palpable that within the life of many who are born now, we shall be pressing the limit of our self-support from the soil unless some other method than by the mere extension of area be found for the increasing of our crop production."

"In the next one hundred years, if this is to be a self-sustaining country, we must adopt new methods of farming and pursue them with energy and intelligent enterprise. There has been, as we know, a movement from the farm to the city. How can these present evils that threaten the progress of our agriculture be remedied? How can the movement from the farm to the city be stopped? How can the proper labor be secured upon the farm? Is there no remedy, or must we change our nature as a people and all become a manufacturing nation and look for our future supplies to some other source in distant countries which themselves are looking forward to a limit upon their production?"

"I am an optimist and believe that education, however strenuous or immediately discouraging, have in themselves elements that justify hope of betterment. The increased price of farm products has increased the value of the farm and has made more certain the profit of farming. That necessarily works upon the capacity of those in the past who have gone into the city, because it offers a prospect of a better income and a more comfortable living. Today with improved roads, with suburban railways, with the telephone, with a rural free delivery and I hope soon, with the parcel post, the life of the farmer will approximate much more nearly that of his city brother than it ever has in the past. In addition to all these elements that are working to the restoration to the farms of increased efficiency in their management, is being given in the country, and on and near the farm, in scientific agriculture, in the states we have long had agricultural colleges. Now these are being supplemented by agricultural high schools and by what are called the consolidated rural schools, all of which have the effect to create much more than heretofore a closer farmer community and to give growing youth a knowledge of the best methods of agriculture and a prospect in the high price of farm products of an adequate return for modern farming on proper principles. This will give to the brothers who stay on the farm a much more certain prospect of a good income and a comfortable living than those who seek to join professions or to engage in business in which the chances for the profits and a comfortable livelihood for the individual are growing less, while those upon the farms are rapidly increasing. The promotion of this movement of vocational education of the embryo farmer in the sons of the present farmer is as high a function as any government department could perform, and that is what is being pressed forward under the Secretary of Agriculture in every state in this nation. The vocational schools must be increased in every state. It is proposed that in every county in every state there shall be a trained agriculturalist, to be paid by the county, who shall, by actual experiments on the different farms in the county, illustrate the proper methods of tilling crops, of rotating them, and who shall give the benefit of his experiences as to the proper organization of farms, as well as the improvement in the breed of plants and in the breed of cattle and other live stock."

THE PROTECTION OF INJUNCTION DENIED TO IOWA COMPANIES

Judge McPherson of Federal Court Disallowed Temporary Injunction of Express Companies.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Des Moines, Sept. 16.—Judge Smith McPherson, in the federal court, today dissolved the temporary injunction obtained recently by the express companies in Iowa against the State railroad commission. He held that the railroad commission has the right to fix express rates, and stated that the new rates, which would be approximately fifteen per cent lower than the present rates, will take effect Oct. 31.

"GREAT AMERICAN" IS ENJOYING TRIP

Thomas Edison, "The American Wizard," Is Enjoying His Holiday Traveling in Europe by Auto.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Sept. 16.—Edison has been automobiling in short stages through France and Switzerland. He intends to continue his holiday through Germany to Hamburg, sailing from there for home. Everywhere Edison receives impressive attention, being spoken of sometimes as "the great American." He has a vivid and delighted interest in all that he sees, and likes to talk about his impressions.

"Who is the shadowy little man with the crowd around him?" Inquired a Parisian woman in the lobby at the Grand Hotel at Geneva. Upon being told that he was Edison, she looked again and replied:

"His clothes look as though they had cost about 50 francs, but he has a brain great enough to make him Emperor of France."

Edison feels the charm of the old pleasant and rich countries through which he passes, but he admires most the delicate and intelligent skill of the Swiss workmen. "My chief man, Worth, whom I have pensioned," said Edison, "is a Swiss, and I have employed more than one thousand of them."

"The only correspondence Edison bothers with on his holiday is to autograph the photographs of himself that people present to him."

Johnson makes the statement that he confessed after being locked up for the reason that he feared he would be lynched. The letter was written in a rambling and ungrammatical manner. The case will undoubtedly be investigated.

JUMP IN COST OF LIVING IN FRANCE

Three Months of Extraordinarily Hot and Dry Weather in France Cause For Rise in Food Prices.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, September 16.—The cost of living in France, which has been creeping upward steadily during ten years, has risen with a jump this summer. One principal reason is the three months of extraordinary dry and hot weather, withering and drying up the vegetable consumed in large quantities, by all classes in France. String beans of the most ordinary description for example sell for 9 to 12 cents a pound and lettuce at $2.50 the hundred wholesale.

Discontent of housewives has taken violent form in the north, where attacks upon farmers, butchers, storekeepers and other vendors by bands of viragos are the daily excitement in towns and cities. The Revolutionary Labor Party has thought this a good occasion to take part, but the women manifestly oppose this, and keep the agitation in their own hands. A loose organization spreads over the north, although example more than anything else keeps the market places in uproar in half a hundred cities and smaller centers. Sometimes there is a meat boycott for a couple of days at a time as a warning to the butchers, or three or four hundred women will rush a market, tipping over all the stands and half destroying the establishments.

Demands of the housewives are for milk at 8 cents a quart, butter at 30 cents a pound, bread at 18 or 19 cents for the 5-pound loaf and plain meats at 20 cents a pound. So far as bread and dairy products are concerned, the women have been generally successful, but the butchers utterly refuse to give way. They affirm that selling at 20 cents a pound would cause an actual loss. Farmers have not been able to combine, as the butchers have done, and they are yielding, although increased prices from their point of view seem justified because fodder is dear and scarce. Most of the eggs are stale-fled, and the milk supply is possibly a third less than usual. The long drought has burnt up the second crops of fallow.

The Parisians hear of these successful raids on prices in the northern provinces with the hope that something will happen to check the rising cost of everything in the capital, where living is 30 per cent dearer than it was at the opening of the century.

NEGRO TO DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

John W. Collins To Be Electrocuted At Sing Sing Next Week For Murder of New York Policeman.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Sept. 16.—Early in the coming week John W. Collins, a negro, will be put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison for the killing of Policeman Michael J. Lynch in this city on July 1 last. The policeman was killed just as he was entering the negro's room in "Thirty seventh street to learn the cause of a seven revolver shots which the negro had fired out of the window. Collins had been drinking heavily, and on the night of the murder entered the house and fired two shots at the janitor. Later he left the house and returned with a bottle of gin. After drinking most of the gin he fired two shots in the air, and told a woman who was with him to lock the door. Instead she ran into the street, shouting for help. Policeman Lynch appeared and Collins shot him in the head. The negro made his escape across the roofs of the houses, but was captured within an hour. His trial, conviction and sentence to death followed within less than sixty days.

GERMANY IS FACING FIGHT WITH ENGLISH

REAL STATUS OF AFFAIRS AS STATED BY UNITED PRESS CORRESPONDENT RECENTLY ARRIVED.

FRENCH INCIDENTAL

The Real Root of Present German-French Trouble Is Old Fraud For Power Between Germans and English.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Charles P. Stewart, for the past four years general European manager for the United Press returned to New York today, after a tour of France and Germany during which he made careful investigations into the relationship between the two countries with a view of ascertaining the real density of the present war cloud. The following is his sketch of the present crisis:

(Copyright by United Press.)

Nominally it is between Germany and France that relations are strained. Really it is between Germany and England. To predict early hostilities would be going too far. There is a possibility of them no more.

But that England and Germany will have to fight, out their differences sooner or later is reasonably certain. English and German interests are in hopeless conflict. This conflict cannot be ended by arbitration. One country or the other must be reduced to second place. Neither is willing to be that one. One of them will have to be beaten into it.

In English Policy, England has recognized this for a long time. Ever since Germany became a formidable power it has been the English policy to band the rest of the old world nations together and against it. At present the lineup in England, France and Russia on one side and Germany, Austria and Italy on the other, Russia is another uncertainty of England and France. Italy is suspected of disloyalty to Germany and Austria. France and England, however, are real allies. Austria and Germany are so closely bound together, so far as international policies are concerned as to be practically one country.

Just as it is to England's interest to unite as many nations as possible against Germany, to Germany's interest to break these combinations up. This is the explanation of its persistently hostile attitude towards France. Of France alone, Germany is not afraid. It would even like a republic as an ally of its own.

To Annoy England. But as England's friend it is very much opposed to it, indeed. At the present time the English navy being something like twice as strong as Germany's and England being an island it is impossible for the Fatherland to get at its arch foe. But it is not impossible for it to get at France, which lies across no more serious obstacle than an imaginary line with a defensive army almost as much weaker than the German as the German navy is weaker than the English.

Accordingly the German game is to annoy England through France. With each blow dealt from Berlin at French interests or French pride the Kaiser places an invitation towards England to come to its allies aid. He is convinced that England dare not do it, for the English army is microscopic even compared with the French and for a continental campaign, such as the English must engage in to protect France, of course the English navy is of no use.

Sooner or later the Germans are convinced that France will grow tired of an ally which English uses France, but when France needs aid does nothing at all. When the time comes Germany will undoubtedly say to France:

Fight Is Coming.

"Why not have an ally that is worth something—come in with us." If France goes Russia will certainly do so too, and England will be left alone, with Germany at the head of the strongest alliance that Europe has ever known. But before this happens England will have to fight, whether it wishes to do so or not. And, there is a strong party among the British which opposes waiting until the last moment for a declaration of hostilities. Obviously this party has a strong argument for it, as Germany is building warships at such a rate that it is gradually overwhelming the English navy. Not to be overhauled very soon the English navy are being compelled to build their own side at a terrific rate. Its burden of this growing argument is crushing the country, nearly to death.

"Will it not be better," ask the militarists, to demolish the German navy before it is as strong as our own. To do it will not only be a measure of safety, but will relieve us of the expense of maintaining our fleet.

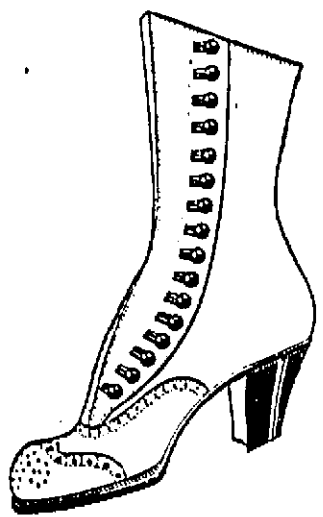

Aside from the political rivalries Germany must have room to expand. England has all desirable territories preempted, with Germany determined to secure possession of a part of England's possessions and England determined to keep all it has got. Outlook for indefinitely continued peace is not bright.

Modern war is expensive and the stakes so great that both countries hesitate when an actual crisis is reached and so far, as any given crisis is concerned, it is generally safe to count on a temporary patching up of differences, but while the central issues remain undecided the danger of an Anglo-German war will always be imminent, whether there is a definite crisis to the fore or not.

We Have Learned a Lot About Shingles

Since we first hung out our shingles and particularly red cedar shingles—always have known they were good, but our close observation has taught us that while all shingles may look alike, they don't wear alike. Maybe you've noticed the same thing. Well, there's a reason for it. We found the trouble starts with their drying and if you buy shingles that have been hurriedly put through the dry kiln, under excessive heat, you will surely be disappointed. Maybe ours cost a little more because of the slow drying, but first cost and longevity of the roof should be considered together. The last car we unloaded was a pippin—come in and look at these shingles—won't cost a penny to look or ask questions.

FAITHFUL PUBLIC SERVANT TO TAKE A SHORT VACATION

John Dalton, the Trusty Watchman at Crossing Near St. Paul Depot, Has Remarkable Record During 16 Years' Service.

With a record of almost unbroken service for the last sixteen years, during which time he has been absent from his post of duty for only ten days, John Dalton, the well-known watchman at the High street crossing near the St. Paul depot, deserves well the vacation of two weeks which he will take beginning next Monday.

To the traveling public this man needs no introduction unless it be to let them know his name. They know him for the work that he is doing and has done during the many years that he has so faithfully protected the traveling public from the dangers that threaten life and limb at that crossing, where thousands of people, young and old, pass during the year.

The service performed by Mr. Dalton is apparent to anyone who has happened to be waiting for a train at the St. Paul depot between the hours of ten and eleven any morning. During the space of ten minutes in that hour five trains leave the St. Paul depot alone and the rush and bustle of passengers in transferring from one train to another and the shifting of trains as they are being made up is very bewildering to the large number of travelers who are clamoring cars. It is at that time that Mr. Dalton is seen at his post. Swinging his heavy cane as a warning of approaching danger to passengers as the trains are moving about and in many cases holding unruly ones from imminent dangers he performs a service to the public and to the railway companies by whom he is employed that is worthy of more than passing comment.

For sixteen years, winter and summer, week days and Sundays, from six in the morning until after nine at night, this man has remained at his post. In all that time he has been off duty for only ten days. Out of a total of more than 88,000 hours on duty in these years he has been relieved for only about 150. Figuring this time at the regular eight hour plan, Mr. Dalton has spent more than thirty years in service during the actual time of sixteen years that have elapsed since he was employed.

During that time not a single accident has occurred at the crossing which this faithful man is guarding. When one considers that more than sixty trains pass that point each day while he is on duty and that this number is increased by many switch engines constantly shuttling about there, it is easy to realize how remarkable this record is.

On next Monday Mr. Dalton and his wife will leave this city for Sioux City, Iowa, where they will visit with his brother whom he has not seen for twenty-nine years. After spending about a week there they will return to this state and spend the remainder of a two-weeks' vacation with friends at Green Bay.

TRAFFIC RESUMED TO MINERAL PT. TODAY

Passenger Trains Cross Flooded Districts Near Gratiot Today. Force Worked Day and Night To Repair Tracks.

After a day and night of strenuous work in repairing the tracks washed out by the recent high floods in the vicinity of Gratiot, the men in charge succeeded in sending passenger trains over the flooded district to and from Mineral Point today. Train No. 8, which has been tied up at the other end of the line between Gratiot and Mineral Point and which is scheduled to arrive here at 10:35 reached here about an hour and thirty minutes late. This was the first train to cross the tracks that had been washed out Thursday night. Train No. 21 which leaves here for Mineral Point at 10:15 made the full trip to the end of the division.

A large force has been at work in repairing the tracks and bridges near Gratiot and much material had to be shipped in to make the necessary repairs. Twenty-six car loads of timbers were through from Milwaukee last night for use in ballasting the required tracks. Although great care had to be exercised in bringing the train across the flooded district this morning so that traffic will be resumed according to the regular schedule.

LARGE CROWD FROM HERE ATTENDS THE MONROE FAIR

Train No. 21 on the Mineral Point division was loaded to its full capacity this morning with people going to attend the county fair at Monroe. Among the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swan. Mr. Swan went on to the scene of the washout to inspect the conditions there and will return, accompanying Mrs. Swan from Monroe this evening.

Chicago & North-Western. William Sullivan, house painter at the shop, is taking a week's vacation and expects to spend part of that time visiting friends in Milwaukee.

Louie Hoague resigned his position at the shop and expects to begin work at the beet sugar factory next Monday.

Arthur Lucht worked two days in one, yesterday, doubling his time at the cooling station last night. He is relieved today by Harry Look.

John Smith is taking Harry Look's place in the clinder pit.

Charles Green, boiler-washer, is taking a lay-off of a few days and is visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Engineer S. O. Dudley resumed work on the 582 this morning.

Engine 1557, which has been in storage at a few days and is in Chicago for service today.

Roy Wilkins resumed his place as fireman on the 518 this morning and Pat Davey, who was relieving him, is firing on the bunk car job.

Engine 54 was brought to the shops yesterday for minor repairs on its tender.

Switchman Lichtenauer resumed work today after spending a vacation of about three weeks at Lake Koshkonong.

All gravel trains from here started today to run over the new line to Beaver Dam. This will make a run of 15 miles for each of the gravel crews.

Carpenter Foreman Morrison has been busy during the last few days rebuilding the stock yards. He completed repairs today on the gates at the Pleasant street crossing.

Gateman Arthur Connors returned from Chicago, yesterday, from a vacation spent there and in Milwaukee and resumed work at his post today.

Conductor Perry went to Chicago yesterday. The Harrington train on which he makes his regular run, was not in service yesterday and the two brakemen, Walsh and McCaffery, were off duty.

Switchman Roy Horn resumed work today after a week or ten days spent at Lake Koshkonong.

Switchman Briggs is laying off to day.

End Celebrates Birthday
Enid, Okla., Sept. 16.—Today was the eighteenth anniversary of the opening of the Cherokee strip to settle, and the birth of the town of Enid, and the occasion has been fittingly celebrated. The entire week has been a gala one, with a fair and carnival in progress, attended by thousands of visitors from all points within a large radius.

W.P. Zabel
THE STORM CLOUD OF MILWAUKEE.

District Attorney Winfred Zabel.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The man who cast the red gloom over the Wolgast and McFarland camps when the matter of pulling off the much heralded boxing match came up was District Attorney Winfred Zabel. Zabel now shifts the responsibility to the sheriff and states that he only acted upon request. The socialist district attorney is looked upon by Milwaukee fans as a "good fellow." He has watched several of the boxing bouts and never complained or found fault with any of them.

STOCKMAN HELD FOR TRIAL OCTOBER 10

Man Charged With Attempting to Rob Frank Fischer of Town of Janesville, Gave Examination Today.

Hugh Stockman, charged with an attempt to rob Frank Fischer of the town of Janesville on September 11 near Afton, was held for trial in the municipal court on October 14, and was released on $500 bail. The preliminary examination of Stockman was held in the municipal court this morning. Frank Fischer, the complainant, and Charles Kilmer of the town of Rock, were introduced as witnesses for the state and testified as to their knowledge of the alleged robbery. Attorney J. J. Cunningham represented the defendant in court and District Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie is prosecuting the case.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. John Zimmermann.
Mrs. Peter Hammers, 12 Terrace street, received the sad news of the death of her mother, Mrs. John Zimmermann, which occurred at the latter's home in Jefferson, Wis. Mrs. Zimmermann left this morning for Jefferson which will be held Monday morning at nine o'clock from St. John's Catholic church there. Mrs. Zimmermann had many friends in this city and had visited friends and relatives here.

Mrs. Thomas Baboyor.
Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Thomas Baboyor who died Wednesday afternoon at the Mercy Hospital were held at 9:30 this morning at St. Mary's Catholic church. Rev. William Goebel officiating.

A large crowd of friends and neighbors accompanied the remains from the late home about seven miles north of the city, attending the services at the church and joining the long procession which followed the remains to St. Olaf cemetery, where the interment was made.

The bereaved family composed of a husband and four little girls, all of whom will sorely miss the loving wife and mother.

Three little girls, Loretta, Stella, Esther and Marie, the oldest only fourteen years of age and the youngest seven are in a particular manner worthy of the sincere sympathy of all. They are just at the age when mother's love is most helpful. A mother's care and attention they can never again hope to find even though their many friends are ready and willing to console and comfort them in every way possible.

Besides the members of her own family Mrs. Baboyor leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melbourn, two brothers, Frank and William and seven sisters, Alice, Jennie, Nora, Katie, Flora, Edna and Anna.

The pallbearers were: John, Frank, George and William McDermott, Maurice and Bert Halloran.

Blanche Mason.
Blanche Mason, the six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mason, colored, died at the home of her parents, Washington street, at 11:45 yesterday morning after an illness of three weeks. Her death was caused by a complication of diseases brought on by tuberculosis of the bone. The remains were taken to St. Michael's, Illinois, on the 9:25 train this morning and interment will be made at that place.

Kenneth McReynolds.
Edgerton, Wis., September 16.—Kenneth, eldest son of Mrs. F. G. McReynolds, died suddenly at one o'clock this morning after but a few days' illness, sugar diabetes being the immediate cause of his death. The little boy never was healthy nor strong and it is supposed that the disease weakened him gradually. Less than two weeks ago he entered the fall term of school, making no complaint of illness, but on Thursday it was found that he complained and went to his home. The disease grew worse suddenly and he became unconscious, medical aid therefore was of no avail. He was twelve years of age, of a kindly and congenial disposition and among his playmates and schoolmates will be greatly missed.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at the home and Monday morning the remains will be taken to Roscoe for interment. The father, the late Dr. F. G. McReynolds, passed away nine months ago and is also buried at Roscoe. Besides the grief-stricken mother a little brother, five years of age, survives. Mrs. Harlow Johnson of Roscoe, sister of Mrs. McReynolds, arrived yesterday.

As You Go.

"Clear up as you go" is an excellent text to work by—a parallel to "Never put off till tomorrow." etc.—and one that many a mother would do well to keep over before her and live up to. It is the putting-off habit that leads to accumulations, to hurry, and, consequently, to badly done work. If clothes need repairing, let them be repaired at once; if things are out of their proper places, put them back again, where they ought to be; before they are irretrievably lost.

Pony vs. Horse Intelligence.

I have been asked a great many times if ponies are really more intelligent than full-sized horses. They certainly appear to be. But the intelligence of any horse will develop under petting and human companionship, and there is no doubt that other horses, if given the same privileges that ponies enjoy and if their size admitted of their being handled and managed in the same way, would prove equally intelligent.—Outing.

Strange Old-Time Condiment.
Vinegar and asafetida mixed were the chief and favorite condiment on the tables of antiquity and of the middle ages.

Speaker of the House.

I believe your treatment has entirely cured me, I can eat anything I want. I believe your remedy will cure any case of indigestion or dyspepsia. It is simply good medicine and I recommend it whenever I have the opportunity to do so. If I should need your advice again, I will certainly write to you at once."

CHINESE GRADUATE SENDS GREETINGS

"Chang," As He Was Known at Wisconsin, Was on Chinese Warship Which Entered New York Harbor.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 16.—The old saying that a Chinese warship "never goes to sea," now has no force nor effect, for on a recent morning the Hai Chi, the new first-class battleship of the Chinese navy, steamed into New York harbor and boomed a salute to the American government. On this ship is a recent graduate student of the University of Wisconsin, Chang Lou Chi, who has taken his master's degree here and who is now filling a semi-diplomatic position as secretary to Admiral Kwang, in command of the battleship.

The battleship signaled China's real entrance into world politics by conveying Chinese representatives to the English coronation, and was the first Chinese ship bearing in such a ceremony in the western world.

Mr. Chang, as he was universally known at Wisconsin, was a pupil of Dr. Charles McCarthy in political science, who has just received a letter from him, sent from New York. The breadth of his sympathies was expressed in the following words:

"Very cordial welcome is accorded our ship by your government and people, and all on board from high to low appreciate the kindness very much. This is a healthy sign of the good will between the United States and China. Our ship will leave for Cuba in about ten days and will return to England again where she will take a new cruiser home to China."

Mr. Chang was one of the most brilliant and personally popular of China's delegation at Wisconsin during his three years' course.

Reyburn plans to go from New York by way of Chicago and end his flight at Los Angeles.

Pork Favorite Chinese Food.
The Chinese eat little or no beef. The beef consumed in the empire is chiefly the food of foreigners. But the natives are exceedingly fond of pork and consume vast quantities of it. Not only is the native article an excellent grade, but Chinese pork is retailed at a price far lower than the mere cost of production in this country. American pork could not compete with that of China, even if there were no question of transportation.

FIRST GAME SUNDAY IN TROLLEY LEAGUE

Janesville and Beloit Play First of Post Season Series At Yost's Park Tomorrow Afternoon.

With material picked from the near-by minor leagues, whose seasons have closed, the Beloit and Janesville clubs, comprising the "Trolley League" will meet in the first of the series of post season games at Yost's Park tomorrow. Both teams have strong lineups and the prospects are good for fast playing. In every way the managers of the two teams have put forth their efforts to insure a victory for their teams. The contest will start at a quarter after three o'clock. A double section of cars will be run from this city to the park tomorrow over the Interurban line to carry the fans. The teams will line up as follows:

JANESVILLE:
Curtis, Jr., Rockford, W-I league.
Green, captain, W-I league.
Kahl, 3b, Rockford, W-I league.
Crotan, cf, Illinois-Missouri league.
Williams, ss, Kewanee, Central Association.
Hall, rf, Trolley league.
Miller, 2b, Trolley league.
Anderson, c, Wisconsin-Minnesota league.
Stoll, p, Fond du Lac, W-I league, or Hurham, p, Madison, W-I league.
Butters, Trolley league, sub.
BELOIT:
Lowe, St. Paul, American Association, pitcher.
Mundy Smith, Madison, W-I league, catcher.
Seibra, Rochester, Minn. league, first base.
Briggs, Rockford, second base.
Richards, Rockford, W-I league, third base.
Pierce, Champaign, I-M league, shortstop.
Savland, Austin, Texas league, left field.
Fulton, Beloit, center field.
Erickson, Rockford, right field.

JACK JOHNSON TRAINING FOR FIGHT WITH WELLS

Champion Heavyweight Boxer of World in Training Near Paris—Bob Armstrong is With Him.

Paris, Sept. 16.—Jack Johnson is training for his fight with Bombardier Wells near Paris. Every day he boxes ten or twelve rounds with minor celebrities of the ring at Mairie City, the American amusement park. Women form a considerable part of the audience. Johnson begins with a speech to the house and then boxes with his trainer, Bob Armstrong, and others. Interspersing swings, hooks and uppercuts with jokes and slangy pleasantries.

BASEBALL NOTES.
In Ward Miller the Cubs have copied the star outfielder of the Eastern league.

DETROIT PITCHERS HAVE GONE TO THE LOW-CROSS, AND THE TIGERS WILL BE LUCKY TO OBTAIN SECOND PLACE.

The Boston Rustlers look to be the only team that can get to "Rube" Marquard, the Giant leaver.

Brooklyn fans are well pleased with the showing made by "Red" Smith, the new Superba third baseman. Pitcher "Buck" O'Brien, who joined the Boston Red Sox, won 24 and lost 6 games, pitching for Denver this season.

Nothing loose in Pennsylvania for Roger Bresnahan this season, but his Cardinals throw a regular scare into the big boys. Rubber underwear must have been the right number for Tommy Madden. The fat rascal is doing great work behind the bat for the Quakers.

Bill Setley, former player, umpire and promoter, is on his way to Honolulu and will bring back a college ball team composed of Chinese boys.

Having failed to put over a deal for the Boston Nationals, it is said that Ned Hamilton is now trying to purchase an American league franchise.

Pitchers Dumbor and Dahlgren, of the Superior team, winners of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league pennant, both pitched no-hit games recently.

Jimmy Burke has his Indianapolis Indians out of the cellar and is boosting them to hold a place in the first division in the American Association.

While his team has come very near falling out of the American league standing and into Lake Michigan, Big Ed Walsh has gone right ahead pitching as grand ball as you would wish to lamp at.

The Athletics are wishing morning, noon and night that the Giants copy the National league pennant. They figure that there is more coin in a world's series played in New York than in Chicago.

Every day or so we hear of a new manager for the Cincinnati Reds and also for the St. Louis Browns. Nowadays, if a manager doesn't make good right off the reel, off goes his knob.

With the Boxers.
Leo Katchel, brother of the late middleweight champion, is touted as the coming lightweight champion. Mike Schreck and Hugh McCann have signed for a fight to take place in Chicago.

BADGER SQUAD NOW
BEGINS TO ARRIVE

Branstad, Neprud and Mackmillan Came Yesterday, and Coach Richards Promised Thirty More Coming.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 16.—With the arrival of Branstad, Neprud and Mackmillan yesterday, the first contingent of the badger football squad reported for duty for the 1911 season. Coach "Big John" Richards said today that thirty men, to his certain knowledge, will be on hand when the practice begins. He said he has purchased the suits and that all the equipment is ready.

The best of last season's squad are eligible to play with the exception of Stimmox, sub-tackle on the 1910 freshman team. Gillette, made famous by spectacular work in the Chicago game, is not expected to report for two weeks.

No coaching will be done, under the rules, until next Wednesday, but the men will meet next Sunday to hear the initial lecture by the coaches and get squared away. The men are to turn out early in order to adjust their curriculum, to register and to make up any deficiencies that may bother them. Coach Richards and Driver are in daily conference on plans for the season.

MORRIS BEATEN BY FLYNN

Pueblo Fireman Crushes Salpupa "Hope" in Bloody Contest.

New York, Sept. 16.—Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, fought a winning battle of ten terrific rounds with Carl Morris, the gigantic heavyweight of Oklahoma, at Madison Square garden. At the end the Oklahoma man's face was battered to a pulp, while Flynn was unmarked save for a lump over the left eye.

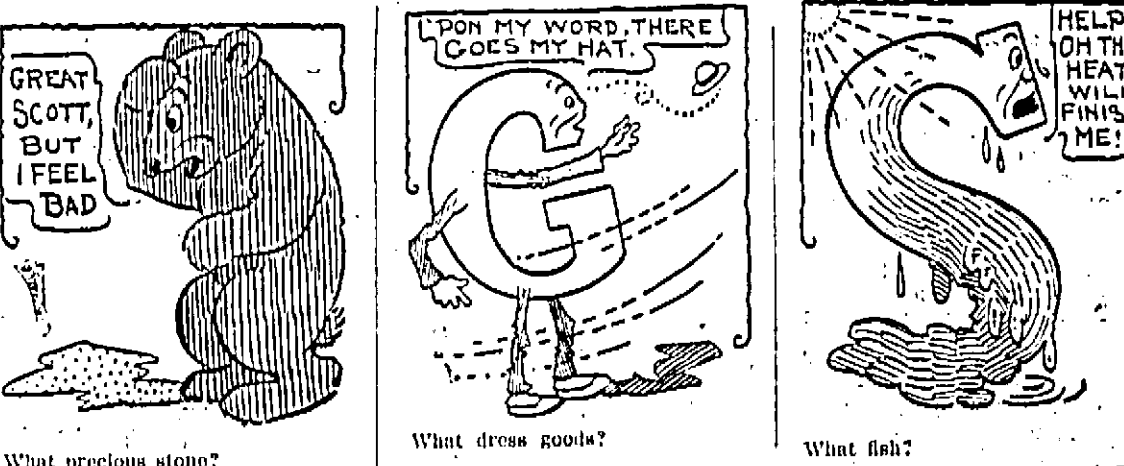

As a possible "white hope" for championship class recognition, Morris is a failure. He had nearly fifty pounds in weight and five inches in height as advantages over the Pueblo man, but failed to daze Flynn at any stage.

Morris really had only one round, the third, and in all the others Flynn was the master in ring work. All through the fight Morris kept using his great weight and strength to weaken Flynn, but the latter invariably had the better of all the close work.

It was the bloodiest fight ever seen in this city, and many of the spectators around the ring were astonished at the stamina of both men.

WILLIS L. MOORE, Chief.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.
Low atmospheric pressures continue to prevail along the northern limit of the weather map. Southerly winds, and warm weather prevail over the greater part of the United States as a consequence. Rain has continued falling on the north Atlantic coast, and, certain, especially as there is a small in the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys, and on the north Pacific coast. A barometric trough occupies the Missouri valley, but on the whole a widespread fair weather through the Plains, and the southern Plateau out the west is favorable to fair and continued warm weather in this vicinity tonight and Sunday.

is a monotonous life at best, and unless the club or the church serve to break the daily routine of homely duties, worry comes in for a full share of attention.

If the table she spreads with such painstaking care, is not appreciated, it is always a cause for worry. Have you ever noticed how the tired face lights up with an old-time pleasant smile when a word of commendation is spoken?

Just a little thing, but the little things of life go to make up the round of every-day existence and worries fade away in the sunlight of happiness at the cost of but little effort.

The man who grabs his hat and makes a break for the street, after the meal, without so much as a word or smile for the patient wife, whose horizon, day after day, is limited to the four walls of the home, deserves a sufficient amount of pronounced type for a life companion, and then the worries would be divided.

There are two classes of people in the world known as optimists and pessimists. The former seldom worry, because they are so busily engaged in enjoying the bright side of life that the shadows escape attention.

The latter usually enjoy poor health, and everything else that is poor if they are able to unearth it, for their vision is so distorted that they see only the dark side of every picture.

The kingdom of humanity is the only kingdom where pessimism gains a foothold. Every other realm abounds in joy and gladness, from the dwelling of the gay-winged butterfly to the sturdy oak which defies the storm and revels in the strength of rugged maturity.

Many good people appropriate the attributes of faith and hope as special gifts directly from the hand of God to the human family, but they are not, for faith and hope are the common property of all created life from the lowest domain of intelligence to the highest.

The little birds which flock to the door on a cold winter morning, hope for crumbs for the early meal, and faith, founded on former experiences, prompts them to make the visit.

The seed which sowers across the field before the blasts of early winter, hopes for resurrection in the Spring, and faith preserves the germ of life through months of patient waiting, and so, all through the long list of domains, faith and hope contribute largely to fruition.

The first dawn of consciousness which comes to the embryo mind of the baby, recognizes the same attributes, and appropriates them, not as a special gift, but as a part of the necessary equipment of all life.

These attributes mean more to the human family than to any other, because they are applied in so many ways, and because, as time advances, they become the sheet anchors which hold the life steady.

It is possible through simple neglect to render helpless any organ of the body. The arm, carried in a sling for six months, is ready for amputation, and the reason why so many of us are half developed, physically, is because we carry about so much dead tissue as the result of neglect.

This is true concerning the graces of the mind and heart. The pessimist lives in an atmosphere of worry because he has lost confidence or faith in himself and humanity, and under these conditions, hope struggles in vain for existence.

The optimist is always buoyant. Whatever may be the discouragements he hopes for the best, and his faith in humanity is so strong that he sees only the good side of human character. His self-confidence is so pronounced that he is sometimes called an egotist, but often this don't worry him.

Do an optimist and live in the sunshine, and the worries of life will fade away like the dew in the morning sun.

PRESS COMMENT.

Factors for Peace. The new American dreadnaughts are the biggest in the world now. In a year or two they will probably be outclassed and ready for the scrap heap and Uncle Sam will be building others still larger. Great thing, this rivalry between the nations to see which can build the biggest warships. And the people pay the freight.

How About "Old Mill Stream?" Broadhead Independent-Register: A cow will give more milk if entertained by sweet music, so says a Chicago milk dealer, who ought to know. Wonder how the quantity would be affected by the strains of "Old Oaken Bucket," "Swanee River" or the "Blue Danube?" "How Dry I Am" might have the opposite effect.

Hayseeds No Longer. Mariette Eagle-Star: Farmers can no longer afford to carry around hayseed concealed in their hat, belt or clothing. A wagon load of timothy was sold the other day for $711.

Good Thing to Remember. Hutchinson, Kans., News: While other communities were talking of recalls and readjustment, Hutchinson invested thirty thousand dollars in a new factory yesterday. Hutchinson doesn't forget to grow.

SCRIPTURE. Psalms 27: 1-10.

The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?

And my foes, came upon me to devour my flesh, they stumbled and fell.

Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear; though war should rise against me, in this day will I be confident.

One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to enquire in his temple.

For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion; in the secret, at his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set upon me a rock.

And now shall my head be lifted up above mine enemies; round about me, therefore will I offer in his tabernacle sacrifices of joy; I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the Lord.

Hear, O Lord, when I cry with my voice; have mercy also upon me, and answer me.

When thou saidst: Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, Lord will I seek.

Hide not thy face far from me; put not thy servant away in anger; thou hast been my help; leave me not, neither forsake me, O God for my salvation.

When my father and my mother forsake me, then the Lord will take me up.

THE PURSUIT OF FORTUNE. A great painting, "The Pursuit of Fortune," shows a woman on horseback, riding at breakneck speed to catch up with the goddess of Fortune. Behind her rides grinning Death.

Which folly symbolizes the career of the late Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes. Yerkes was a cold blooded, money making genius, who early in life got into the penitentiary for embezzlement. Afterward, going to Chicago, he made a big fortune in the street car business.

His faithful wife stood by him when he was sent to prison. When he got rich he rewarded her devotion by divorce and married Mary Moore, a beautiful young girl aged twenty-three. He was then fifty.

The second wife was ambitious socially and hoped to be a leading factor in high life, but Chicago society deliberately snubbed and repulsed her. She persuaded her husband to move to New York. Yerkes built a mansion there, but the social doors would not open to the golden key.

Disillusioned, embittered, Mrs. Yerkes shut herself up in the Fifth Avenue palace.

Yerkes sold his Chicago holdings and went to London, where he made more millions in traction. His wife made a third essay to enter society, but in London, as in America, she was turned down by the smart set. There was domestic difficulty, and she came back to New York.

Then Yerkes returned to New York, where he died in great agony at a fashionable hotel. Mrs. Yerkes visited him only once during his illness, a few hours before his death.

The story is told that Yerkes died alone, his body being dumped into a big laundry basket, and taken by a freight elevator down to the undertaker's wagon.

And the widow? When the will was read she was cut off with $200,000. Even the rich art gallery in the Yerkes palace was left to the city. And for years the widow spent money and energy trying to get her legal rights.

Meanwhile she married "for love" a young man named Mizner. They lived together only one week. And a short time ago she died of nervous prostration, an old woman at forty.

Never in her life did this woman get what she wanted.

Why? Did it just happen so? No. The law of compensation holds. She violated the laws of love when she married for money and social honors.

Note this fact: Even handed justice punishes in at least two ways: First,—by giving us what we want. Second,—by denying us what we want.

And of the two modes of punishment the latter is often the lesser.

We've chastised Champ Clark and Joe Bailey. And all of the men that we knew. We've spoken of suffragette maidens. And banded them time and again.

We've mentioned the moon-crazing lovers. And published their foolish-house talks. We've banded at the automobilists. Until our typewriter bulks.

We've written about the lunch counter. We've roasted the boarding house prime. We've scolded the amateur singer. And said nasty things of her tune.

We've satirized women's apparel. And been too sarcastic by half. We've mentioned the horseless phono. And knocked the poor old phono, phono.

We've written about the new baby. And who's first biscuits we've slugged. We've pitted the suffragette husband. Whose head with new notions is crumpled.

We've ridiculed all politicians. And accused that have been packed. We've said what we could of club women. The night prowling husband we've whacked.

We've even penned lines to sweet Mary. To Mary who had the small lamb. We've also exposed the young hopeful. Who seeks to the cupboard for jam.

We've harpooned the telephone gossip. The sweetest car conductor as well. The potter's, the coppers, the barbers. And others, too many to tell.

We've searched through the earth, sky and water. We've versified every known pun. And oft we have reached the cornucopion.

There's nothing new under the sun. O, let us to the wall of the scribber. We ask it upon banded knees. Can't somebody start a new notion?

Won't somebody do something please.

WHERE IS IT NOW? That overcoat I threw away last spring. Gee whiz! but I was tired of the thing.

I swore I never would put it on again. Its cut gave me a large, three-cornered pain.

"Twins worn around the cuffs and in-lap, too; The velvet collar was a fright to yowl. 'Twas ready for the rack, without doubt; When summer came I gladly threw it out.

I said I'd save my coat all summer and Annex an overcoat that would be grand. But now the chilly winds of fall are here; The blizzard of the wintertime is near. I've counted up my coat, alas, alack! I wish that I could get that old coat back.

TWILIGHT CLUB TO DISCUSS PURCHASE OF WATER COMPANY

"Should Janesville Buy Water Works?" Will be Subject at Opening Meeting of the Club Next Month.

"Should Janesville buy the Water Works?" will be the topic of the opening meeting of the Twilight club for the fall and winter season at the Y. M. C. A. building, probably the second Tuesday of next month, October 10. This topic was selected at a meeting of the committee on Thursday evening. Mayor John C. Nichols has been secured to lead the discussion of the subject, which is at present a vital issue in view of the recent decision of the railroad rate commission, is expected. The choice of speakers is left in charge of the mayor, but the topic will be discussed pro and con.

The programs for the rest of the season have not been definitely decided upon, but will be submitted to the club at the first meeting. It was planned to hold the monthly meetings as usual, in the Y. M. C. A. building and the same dues of five dollars per year will be charged.

The committee in whose hands the arrangements for the opening meeting have been placed, is composed of S. M. Smith, chairman; E. J. Hamer, secretary; M. O. Menard, C. F. Einfeld, C. V. Korch and Fred L. Clemons.

GIANT THERMOMETER HAS BEEN ERECTED

Expert Manufacturer of Meteorological Instruments Has Placed Big Thermometer on Gazette Building.

A giant thermometer, one of the largest in the world, has just been hung on the outside wall of the building occupied by the Gazette and the Parker Pen Co. It was made by James Cowling of Galena, Ill., an expert manufacturer of meteorological instruments, and measures over 10 ft. by 16 inches. The glass tube, which carries the fluid is three-quarters of an inch in size and is calibrated so that it can be seen at a long distance and is easily readable a block away in either direction on Milwaukee St. Two and one-half quarts of fluid compound especially prepared by Mr. Cowling are contained in the tube and give accurate record of the temperature. Mr. Cowling has personally supervised the hanging of this big thermometer indicator and is a man of remarkable attainments. He is a profound student of thermometry and has published several books on the subject from which he has gained considerable fame, over 20,000 volumes having been disposed of.

WARNING IS ISSUED TO CARELESS BOYS

Street Commissioner Dan Wilkins Will Prosecute Youth Who Multitude New Street Signs.

Street Commissioner Dan Wilkins has issued a warning to the rascally youngsters who are attempting to mutilate or destroy the new street signs to desert their destructive efforts or any offenders who are caught will be prosecuted to the limit of the law. The street commissioner states that he will not stand for such willful destruction of the city property and boys who are indulging in this practice will do well to behave themselves hereafter. The street signs arrived but a few days ago and the work of putting them up has commenced. In some cases, the boys have been using the signs for targets, throwing stones and shooting at them.

METHODIST SOCIETY SIGNALLY HONORED

Standard Bearers of Cargill M. E. Church Turned Over Largest Sum of Any Society in Conference.

Miss Helen Johnson, treasurer of the Standard bearers of the Cargill Memorial Methodist church has received a letter from the conference treasurer of the society, Mrs. L. L. Wheeler, stating that the local society raised the largest amount of money of any of the organizations in the Wisconsin conference. The amount raised by the society here was $82 which is a very creditable showing and the society is justly proud of the fact that they are the "number one" organization in this conference.

SENIOR RECEPTION PLANS COMMENCED

Class Officers Elected and Committees Appointed in Preparation—Planned for Unknown Date Within Three Weeks.

The Seniors at the High School held their first meeting last night and after they had elected their year's officers decided to have the Freshman reception within the next three weeks. This reception is one of the big events of the year in the Freshman's program, and they all look forward to it with a feeling of being about to undergo one of the crises of their young lives. The Seniors also regard it with a feeling of pleasure because it marks the real beginning of their Senior year.

The officers elected were as follows: Officers—Kelly, Pres.; Joanna Hayes, Vice-Pres.; Robert Cunningham, Secy.; and Frank: Charles Noyes, Sergeant at Arms.

The following committees were appointed to take charge of the reception:

Finance—J. Cunningham, M. Schindler and J. Jones.

Amusement—R. Humphrey, S. Garbutt, M. Donahue, M. Doty, J. Langlin, D. Korst, R. Cunningham, D. Kelly and A. Burdick.

Refreshment—C. Karlo, M. Wray, D. Amerolf and C. Gray.

These committees are given each year by the Seniors to the Freshmen for the purpose of getting the new pupils acquainted and showing them that they are recognized as part of the school. In past years the Seniors have covered themselves with glory as entertainers and have succeeded very well in accomplishing the purpose of the occasion. The entertainments have been most excellent, the refreshments delightful and the spirit of the hosts most cordial. In short the classes of past years have established a precedent which will make the present class use all their ingenuity to equal.

Part of the usual program is for the Senior president to make an address of welcome which is answered by some member of the Freshmen. Only these two classes are given invitations to the reception except the chosen ones from the Juniors who assist in serving.

Although an excellent time is expected and the members of both classes are looking forward to the event with a great deal of enthusiasm.

BURGLARS BUSY IN BELOIT LAST NIGHT

Two Stores on Principal Street Entered and Robbed of Change and a Ton of Coal Taken From Car.

Beloit, Sept. 16.—Burglars last night entered the meat market of former sheriff R. G. Scheibel and the grocery store of John Bull by climbing through the transom over the front doors in full view of the principal business street. A small amount of change was secured from the meat market, but nothing was taken from the grocery store.

Thieves last night carried away a ton of coal from a car standing in the St. Paul yards here. Wheelbarrow trucks led to the home of an Italian where the coal was found and arrest is likely.

BIG CROWDS ATTEND STATE FAIR TODAY

Estimated That Fully 60,000 People Would be Down to Fair Grounds to Witness Great Military Maneuvers.

(By United Press.)
Milwaukee, Sept. 16.—With most ideal weather prevailing, state fair managers estimated at noon today over 50,000 people would have visited the fair grounds by night, drawn there to witness the military maneuvers, of five companies of national guard, a sham battle, horse racing and besides other attractions an attempt by Lincoln Beachey, Curtiss aviator, to break the world's altitude record in a biplane. Over 40,000 people passed the gates by noon. The fair ends today.

MORE MOVING PICTURES TAKEN IN CITY TODAY

The Variety and Excellence of the Janesville Film Will be a Good Advertisement.

H. H. Louthain took several more pictures this morning of the city for his Janesville film. Boatwick's store with a large army of clerks standing out in front was the first taken. Shortly after that the East side fire company made an exhibition run toward Milwaukee street. During the noon hour an automobile was brought into service and pictures taken while running along the main thoroughfare.

These pictures, which when put together into one five hundred foot film, will give a good idea of Janesville because they are taken at so many different times and under such entirely different conditions.

HAROLD B. MYERS, FORMER TRACK STAR, WEDDED AT MADISON

Former Janesville Resident and Well Known Varsity Athlete, Takes Miss Isabel Hearn as Bride, Thursday.

Janesville relatives and friends of Harold Bruce Myers, formerly a resident of this city and former captain of the Wisconsin University track team and star athlete, were married Thursday, Sept. 14, to Miss Isabel Hearn, daughter of Mrs. June L. Potter, at Madison.

The wedding was a very quiet affair and was attended by only a few friends and relatives of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Myers will be at home after November 1st, at Kaukauna, Wis., where the groom is a practicing physician, and where he located some three months ago.

Dr. Myers was formerly a resident of this city. He is a nephew of Peter L. Myers and a grandson of Mrs. Julia Myers. He received his early education in this city and is a graduate of the Janesville high school. Shortly after finishing his school course here he went to the University of Wisconsin at Madison and took the regular four-year academic course.

During his high school career Myers was a "crack" track athlete and won fame for the local high school in many athletic meets and events. At the university he was also one of the star track men and was captain of the team in his Senior year. He won fame throughout the western universities as a long distance runner and was awarded many trophies for his brilliant conduct on the track. At one of the conference meets at Chicago he was presented with a cup by Coach Alvin Stagg.

Myers graduated from the university in 1908 and subsequently took a three years' medical course in Western Reserve University. Since his graduation from the latter institution he has taken up the practice of medicine in Kaukauna, Wis. He has many friends and acquaintances in this city.

Mrs. Peter L. Myers and Mrs. John Myers of this city were present at the wedding Thursday.

FUNCTIONAL ETHICS

By Rev. Clarence Greeley

TEXT—If their fruits ye shall know them.—Matt. 7:20.

As Schopenhauer thought, the solution of life is not for us in far off lands of the blessed; we are born for the world of manly business, task, vocation, function—ethically known by our fruits.

Right function is progressive action. True moral life is like the heart pulsation; it ends one beat only to begin another. The twentieth century philosopher or preacher of ethics must be something of a naturalist to realize that the functions of the yearning, straining will are describable only in terms of experience; and the human mind, with its moral truth or awareness, have grown through countless ages.

The eighteenth century rationalism, like the medieval dogmatism, and the Greek idealism, looked upon the moral world, not as dynamic or functional, but static. The nineteenth century thinkers since Darwin agreed on the transformation of species—which had been regarded since Aristotle, as fixed and final in form once for all. Men of the rationalistic eighteenth century had much to say of the dignity of changeless essential man from the savage up to Shakespeare.

But the nineteenth century proved that human nature is more like an organism, not permanent in its structure, but capable of progress or retrogression, as the outcome of physical, mental and moral growth of the race for more than 10,000 years; and its moral dignity is that of untold ages of suffering, survival, failure, victory, progress.

Hence the twentieth century preacher or teacher of ethics should know our new physiology—the science of functions.

Our new psychology is called functional; our new logic is called functional; there is even a functional theology; their truth not sickled over with the pale cast of thought, but vital with the pulse beat of life. Therefore, I venture, somewhat timidly, on June 6, before the Fellowship club in this city, to speak on "Functional Ethics," a term I had not seen in print, and Professor Tufts of the University of Chicago gives assurance that no work has ever appeared, to his knowledge, under that title.

I do not seek, however, to corner functional ethics—quite the reverse—but would define the subject in part, as we follow the rough labyrinth (new track) I am trying to blaze in the woods, as follows: The ethics that associates itself with the functions of the body—growing out of those and of society—and the concepts underlying.

The importance of this method (not system) is felt not only by conservative Christians who, as ever against mere rationalistic creeds, have a presentiment that Christ's ethical way was functional instead of credal or metaphysical; but as a mode of thinking, functionalism was also the only ultimate defence of Protestantism against the papacy. Not only conservative Christians, as contrasted with rationalists, feel this influence of the zeitgeist, but Professor Foster, e. g., a somewhat different type—familiar with up-to-date life sciences—admits that one corner stone of twentieth century morality is in our human struggle for self-preservation, a principle inexplicable in all activity which we call life. The point we are making is this: The ethics of the twentieth century will not be rationalistic but functional; and this fact is largely the fruit of our new or modern biology.

The importance of this fact is obvious when we reflect that even the Renaissance largely ignored common life (which Henry Drummond defines as functions); and the so-called "culture" of that period denied to ordinary human nature the capacity to develop organs and functions, not only for its own preservation but development.

Under the gradual influence of our new biology there is more and more a tendency to look for true goods in the normal development of the vital functions which constitute man's nature—mental, moral and spiritual, as well as physical and economic.

A basis of functional ethics in our new biology may be thus set forth: When the organism modifies its activity or its structure in response to changed conditions, those modifications are called functional adaptations. We would not press the analogy of colonies of ants and bees to human society too far. But we may learn from biology of lower individuals that each should attempt to preserve itself, promote progress, and, if it be a member of a higher community, it should act in the interests of others and the whole group; that its fundamental task, vocation, function.

The practical application of biological facts to the derivation of ethics, not from imaginary standards in bygone unscientific ages, but from life functions and tasks in laboratory, shop, home, school and church—as well as social topics of the time—is obvious, not merely the teaching of necessary truth, too long fatally neglected, concerning race, sex, procreation, heredity and all "the real earthly troubled nature of body and soul."

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

On the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Press Bible Question Club.

(Copyright 1910 by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Sept. 17th, 1911.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.) Daniel's Companions in the fiery Furnace, Dan. 3.

Golden Text—The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me, Job, xiii:8.

(1.) Verses 1-2—What right have we, if any, to compel those over whom we have authority to worship as we desire?

(2.) Should the state control, as to the religious belief and practice of its citizens? Why or why not?

(3.) If we should attend the services in a heathen or a Mohammedan temple, how should we conform ourselves to their methods of worship?

(4.) Verses 13-15—What rights have we, if any, to be angry, or annoyed, at the method others take to worship God?

(5.) When one shows anger with another at the expression of an opinion contrary to his own, what does that indicate?

(6.) What should be our relative valuation of correct creed and correct deeds?

(7.) If a man gives way to "rage and fury" what are the chances for the correctness of his creed?

(8.) What was really the matter with Nebuchadnezzar, and with all others who have been intolerant of the religion of others?

(9.) Verses 18-19—Who were Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego?

(10.) What would have been the harm if these three men, out of deference to the king, who had been a good friend to them, had fallen down to the golden image like the rest of them?

(11.) What is the religious significance to us, of the faith which animated these three men?

(12.) Suppose you had to lose your life, or sacrifice a religious principle, which should you do?

(13.) Verses 19-23—How do you account for the cruel spirit that has been manifested through the centuries, and which has resulted in the martyrdom of thousands, for their religious belief?

(14.) Does God in these days ever interfere miraculously, to prevent the physical suffering or the death of a good man who may be in the hands of those who are determined to wreak their vengeance upon him?

(15.) What does God do in these days, for one who may be in similar peril to these three men?

(16.) Verses 24-27—Who was the fourth man in the furnace with the three Hebrews?

(17.) What, if any, evidence is there, that faithful Christians in these days, get delivered from the fiery furnace of trial, more than other men?

(18.) Verses 28-30—What happens in these days, to good people in trouble, in any way analogous to this story?

(19.) Was the king any better man after this event than before?

(20.) What is the moral difference between a man who is cruel on behalf of a good cause and one who is cruel on behalf of a bad cause? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

BERLIN HAS FRENCH TERMS

Ambassador Cambon Delivers Note to German Minister.

Berlin, Sept. 16.—The French ambassador, M. Cambon, called upon the German minister of foreign affairs, Herr Von Kiderlen-Wascheter, and presented the French note, which, it is understood, will lead to German counter-proposals in a few days.

The withdrawal of French balances here continues, causing a further sharp advance in the Paris slight exchange rate.

Paris, Sept. 16.—It was announced at the ministry of war that the soldiers whose terms of service are expiring would return to their homes, as in ordinary years. This will do much to relieve the public concern.

ABDUCTOR IS STILL FREE

Canadian Posses Determined to Take Fugitive Dead or Alive.

Manitou, Man., Sept. 16.—With over 1,000 men, some of whom are mounted police, searching the rough country for the man who abducted Gladys Price, a school teacher at Snowflake, the fugitive has evaded capture for three days.

The chain of evidence concerning the man's identity was completed when the girl positively identified a police photograph of the man known to the Winnipeg police as Wesley Osborne, as her alleged assailant.

Canadian posses have been ordered to capture him even if it is necessary to kill him.

William Wilson, Aged 72, Held at Springfield for Counterfeiting.

Springfield, Sept. 16.—William Wilson, seventy-two years old, a Civil war veteran and old-time resident of southern Illinois, was held to await the action of the federal grand jury on a charge of counterfeiting. He was unable to furnish bond in the sum of $500 and was remanded to jail.

Wilson is a resident of Venice, and is alleged to have made a large number of quarters and half-dollars, which he passed at Venice.

TODAY'S EVANSVILLE NEWS

BRING REMAINS TO EVANSVILLE HOME

Body of Late Barney H. Standish Who Died in Madison Hospital Brought to Evansville Today.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, Sept. 16.—The remains of the late Barney H. Standish, who died yesterday morning in the general hospital at Madison, were brought to his home in this city yesterday afternoon and it is expected the funeral will be held from the family home on Sunday.

Mr. Standish was a valued member of the Evansville Commercial Club and a committee of gentlemen from that organization and a number of intimate friends were at the depot when the body arrived.

Mr. Standish's loss is deeply felt in this community for he was public spirited and an ardent worker for the upbuilding and improvement of the city.

He came to this city when a youth with his parents and for many years resided in what is now the Thienhold house on Church street. He was one of two children. His sister, Miss Laura Standish, is one of the superintendents of city schools at Minneapolis and both Mr. Standish and his sister are well remembered as successful teachers in Evansville.

He was married to Miss Mae Richards of Brooklyn, a University of Wisconsin friend and their union was blessed with three children, two daughters and one son. The daughters are Mrs. Bertha Shropshire of Victoria, B. C., and Mrs. Helen Fernhaber of Winnipeg, Canada.

The greater part of his life was spent in Evansville, although the family resided in Minneapolis for a few years. They returned to Evansville about five years ago. Since then a large share of his time and energy has been spent managing his farm, while the summer months are spent at their cottage on Lake Kogonsa.

The deceased has been especially interested in farming and was what might be styled a scientific agriculturist.

Mr. Standish's life was given over mainly to literary work. His large and well chosen library proclaimed his love for books. He was the author of Standish's Science Reader, which has been adopted in the city schools of Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul and in many states is considered as a standard reader. He also wrote several books of poems and has made various contributions to some of the leading magazines of the United States. A number of his works are in the Evansville public library.

Postal Savings Bank.

Hon. James P. Walker, a postoffice official, was here yesterday to give the local postoffice official instructions in regard to starting the new postal savings bank, which will begin to receive deposits September 22. The hours of business will be the same as the post-office hours.

Evansville is indeed very fortunate in being named as one of the cities where the postal savings bank is established.

The Evansville Seminary has secured a few new registrations in the past few days. Among the new arrivals are Miss Edna Dove and her brother of Rock Island, Ill., and Mr. Burns of Riverside, Ia.

Personal.

Mrs. Cynthia Little of Missouri is visiting at the home of Charles Blackman.

HIGHLAND HOUSE PROPERTY SOLD

Title To Property on East Milwaukee Street, To Be Used For Garage, Has Been Acquired By E. A. Kemmerer.

With the removal of the old Highland House, 206 East Milwaukee street, one of the landmarks of Janesville, will be torn down. For many years, OLD HIGHLAND HOUSE TO BE TORN DOWN.

It occupied a prominent place in the life of Janesville as a hotel, when the city was then but a village. Of late years it has been used as a boarding house.

The old building will be torn down to make way for a modern automobile garage, to be erected for E. A. Kemmerer. The title to the property has been acquired by Mr. Kemmerer, although all the papers have not yet been drawn up and recorded. Plans are being drawn up for a one story building, one hundred by one hundred and eighty feet in size for the new garage. The proposed structure will be of brick and steel construction with arched roof and a deep basement.

MOST OF COUNTIES HAVE ACCEPTED AID

State Highway Commission Reports That Townships Throughout State Are Strong for Highway Act.

Although county clerks are not required by law to report until October 1st the amounts voted by the various towns and counties for state aid improvement, preliminary reports are already in from many of them. Information received from this and other sources would indicate that thirty-five counties will ask state aid in excess of their apportionment, thirty-two will ask for amounts less than their apportionment, and four counties have taken no action.

Those counties in which the towns have failed to vote any money, or enough money to exhaust the state aid available for the county, still have a chance to get state aid if the county board at a special meeting held on or before October 1st votes a county tax equal to two-thirds of the cost of the desired road improvements.

The proceeds of the county tax, together with the state money, may be spent on the county systems of prospective state highways at a point selected by the county board or its committee. Money voted by the towns, together with the county and state aid drawn by it, must be spent at points on the system selected by the

RISKS LIFE TO SECURE MOTION PICTURES OF CHARLESTOWN HURRICANE.

A typical view of a wrecked house after the recent hurricane in Charlestown, S. C. Upper right, Freeman Owens, who at the risk of his life "kept turnin' the crank" in the recent Charlestown horror.

New York City.—Young Freeman Owens has won the medal for heroism in the motion picture field by sticking to his job in the face of what seemed certain death throughout the recent hurricane which wrecked blocks of residences in the city of Charlestown; S. C. Owens had been sent to Charlestown to secure some historic views but when the hurricane broke he took his stand on one of the wind-swept corners and there for over two hours ground out pictures of the hurricane at its height. Owens is but 18 years old but has been dabbling more or less in moving pictures since he was 12. When seen at his hotel here and asked to tell his experiences he drew with a sheepish grin: "I 'jes' kep' turnin' the crank of the movin' picture camera every time I saw anything worth snapping." When asked for a stronger impression of the fearful storm he replied:

"Well, when the storm began to gather I had sort of a hunch that we were in for a stiff time of it. My business was to get pictures of Charlestown, but it was so cloudy and threatenin' that I had put away my camera for the day. When I realized later that it had developed into a real hurricane it struck me that some pictures taken right during the worst of it would be rather interestin'." I told out the camera and had a young fellow help me steady it on its tripod.

"While I was turnin' the crank to get a street scene where all sorts of things were blowin' through the air and people were being flattened up against buildings, the young fellow said he guessed he'd had enough so he let go of the camera and legged it for dear life."

Value of Wisdom.

It was remarked by Seneca that a wise man is provided for occurrences of every kind; the good he controls, the bad he vanquishes; in prosperity he betrays no presumption, and in adversity he feels no despondency. The wisdom he possesses enables him to bear up with heroism under all reverses.

The Gardens One Enjoys.

I am rapidly arriving at the conclusion that the only gardens one enjoys are those belonging to our friends, and that all rhapsodies one reads about gardening in general are written over a blazing fire on tempestuous nights by people of exuberant imagination and no knowledge whatever on the subject.—Ladies' Field.

A Tea Substitute.

It is a very well-known fact on the continent that a raw egg is a certain restorer of tired nerves. A French or a German woman will eat a couple of raw eggs for a pick-me-up just as the English woman takes a cup of strong tea, and feels much refreshed thereby.

Small Things Lead to Great.

Sow a thought, you reap a word; sow a word, you reap an act; sow an act, you reap a habit; sow a habit, you reap a destiny.—W. M. Thackeray.

A Book That Fully Explains Why We Can
Build a 30-Horsepower 5-Passenger
Fore-Door Touring Car to Sell for $900. Write for a Copy

It is utterly impossible for anyone to realize the economical manufacturing strength of the Overland organization without a clear idea of its enormous manufacturing facilities. To the average man an automobile factory is merely a factory—a place where cars are made. Yet there is the greatest difference in the world. On one hand you have a plant which, on account of its great production, can make and sell its car for far less than the other factory. And on the other hand you might have a very small factory which, while it produces a good car, has a very small capacity, and its car for car production costs are considerably higher than those of the large plant. That is why you find some manufacturers selling 30-horsepower touring cars at prices 25 or 30 per cent higher.

We have just published a very thorough book which explains in a clear, definite and readable manner the difference in automobile plants. And the point of this whole book is to prove the economical manufacturing ability of the Overland plant—to prove its strength by showing and explaining to you the interior and exterior of the greatest automobile plant in the world. It takes you over the entire 80 acres. It takes you in shops and departments that will not be found in other plants. It explains and illustrates the giant Olson tensile strength testing machine of 100,000 pounds capacity for testing raw metals. It shows you what a White-Southern endurance tester is. It takes you through the chemical laboratories and the great drop forge plant—the heart of the industry. It takes you through what will seem like miles of automobile machinery. It shows you how it takes four months to produce an Overland car and how thorough, accurate and painstaking each operation is. The book is free and we want you to have one. It is interesting and full of information. Anyone can read it for it is written in words of few syllables.

Above all it gives you a clear understanding of economies in the production of automobiles in great quantities and we believe it proves why no other manufacturer in the business can produce the car described below, and sell it at our price without losing money. To realize this you have to compare this automobile with any other similar car on the market. Take the entire list of specifications and see if you can duplicate this car for less than $1250. Check the whole car, the wheel base, the motor, the seating capacity, the body finish, the transmission, the design, etc. Do take and the exceptional value of this car will show you where to invest your money. Our Model 59 is the most progressive step the industry has ever witnessed and it means a great deal to the motor buyers of America.

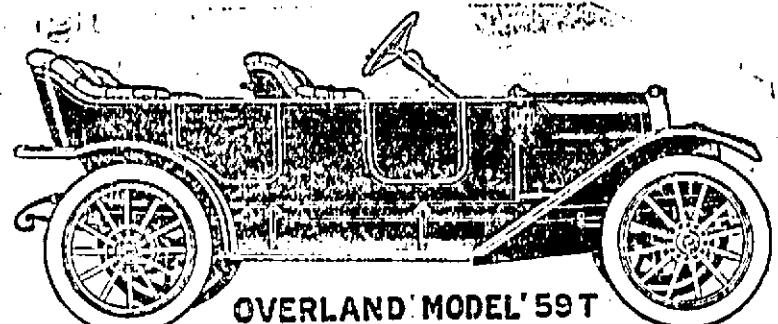

A line to us will bring you this new Overland book. It explains what we are and what we have got and why other cars of similar size and rating are from twenty to forty per cent higher in price. Write and ask for catalogue A-29.

FIVE HURT IN CRASH AT TARRYTOWN, N. Y.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. Has Narrow Escape From Death.

BUNDLE OF STEEL FALLS

Rope on Derrick Breaks at Home of Oil King, Letting Mass of Material Drop on Heads of Workmen—One Dying.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Sept. 16.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., narrowly escaped death, one man will die and four others were terribly injured in an accident which occurred at Mr. Rockefeller's father's house. A bundle of wire was being hoisted to the roof when the rope broke. Mr. Rockefeller leaped from under just in the nick of time, but five workmen were caught under the mass.

Mr. Rockefeller hastened to give first aid to the injured, while he dispatched workmen for doctors and nurses.

Garage Turned Into Hospital. The garage was turned into a temporary hospital, and it is there that three doctors and five nurses labored to save the lives of the injured men. Mr. Rockefeller was working with them.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and his family had just returned from Seal Harbor, Me. After a hasty luncheon he went up to the hill to see how the addition of ten rooms to his father's house was progressing.

The roof of the house had been torn off so that ten bedrooms can be added at a cost of $1,000,000.

Rope Breaks, Steel Drops. Mr. Rockefeller, watching the work carefully, had just passed around to the west side of the building where some men were hoisting a bundle of steel by a derrick which is located on the roof. The steel had reached the second story when one end caught on the cornice. The tie rope broke, the steel tipped up and slipped through the noose.

Mr. Rockefeller saw what had happened, and realizing the danger, called back to the men to jump for their lives. He leaped just as the bundle of steel came crashing to the ground. A large number of Italian laborers were helping some stone masons. They failed to grasp Mr. Rockefeller's warning. As the bundle of steel broke and the beams scattered they moved these men down.

After the crash Mr. Rockefeller rushed in and began to pull the injured men from under the pile of steel, all the while calling for other workmen to come to his aid.

HAZERS INJURE SCHOOL BOY

Dollsville (Ill.) Youth is Severely Handled by Companions.

Dollsville, Ill., Sept. 16.—Charles S. Schrader, fourteen years old, son of Henry C. G. Schrader, is under medical treatment for serious internal injuries caused by a hazing at the high school.

Hazing in Illinois is a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment.

At recess young Schrader was surrounded on the playground by a crowd of boys, who pushed him back and forth until he fell. Then some of the hazers fell or threw themselves upon him, crushing his side and injuring his liver.

BOSTON BALL CLUB IS SOLD

McRoy and McAler Purchase Half Interest in Red Sox.

Boston, Sept. 16.—The purchase of a half interest in the Boston American League baseball club by James B. McAler of Washington and Robert H. McRoy of Chicago was announced.

John I. Taylor of this city retains a half interest in the club.

Kills Comrade While Hunting. Stoughton, Wis., Sept. 16.—When William Anderson, aged twenty-two, lifted his gun to shoot at ducks here, he accidentally discharged the full contents of the gun into the left shoulder of George Heinrich, aged seventeen. The wounded boy died an hour later.

STOCKS ADVANCE IN PRICE AT OPENING

New York, Sept. 16.—The tone at the opening of the stock market today was strong, stocks advancing about a point.

PRICE OF BARLEY SOARS IN LA CROSSE

Barley Crop the Heaviest in Years is Being Shipped at Remarkably High Prices.

La Crosse, Sept. 16.—Whether Maline's anti-prohibition wave was the influence or whether the capacity of Wisconsin beer drinkers has increased, has not been determined, but barley has soared from 60 and 70 cents a bushel to $1.05 on the La Crosse market. The supply is the biggest in years. A greater portion of the crop is being shipped.

POOLING OF RATES IS AGAIN EXPECTED

Trans-Atlantic Companies Are Expected to Renew Arrangement and Avoid a Rate War.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Eng., Sept. 16.—It is generally anticipated in Trans-Atlantic shipping circles that the pooling arrangement, which expired on October 31, will be renewed at the resumed conference to be held in Cologne during September. The Canadian-Pacific railway company, which works its shipping interests chiefly as a feeder for the railway, and which has heretofore opposed the extension of the agreement, has been, as a result of concessions granted by the continental companies, modified its attitude.

The movement of passengers during the first half of this year did not realize expectations, partly on account of many Americans sailing until later in the year to visit England, thus avoiding the high charges which prevailed during the coronation period. The decrease, however, was general in all classes, both eastbound and westbound. On the routes to America the total decrease was 127,123. From British ports to Canada, on the other hand, there was an increase of 20,531. The continental lines have been the chief sufferers, the four leading ones having carried 85,813 fewer passengers than they did for the same period last year.

Under the old agreement these four companies were entitled to 62 per cent of the pooled traffic. They actually carried 13,444 fewer passengers than the number on which that percentage was based. In view of this, it is understood that they are prepared to adopt a conciliatory attitude to avoid a rate war.

"Fourth of July" in Mexico. City of Mexico, Sept. 16.—Today, being the 10th anniversary of Mexican independence, was recognized as a general holiday in all parts of the republic. About all of the elaborate celebrations customary to the occasion were cancelled, however, owing to the fear of an uprising against the Government.

TWO MISSIONARIES REPORTED KILLED

Situation in Chinese Province Beyond Control of Government—Two Americans Reported Killed.

(BY UNITED PRESS.)

Peking, China, Sept. 16.—Latest reports from the Sze-Chuen province say that two American missionaries have been killed in riot. This is not confirmed. The government admits the situation practically beyond control.

Refuses the Letter. (BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Elia declined to make public the verbatim contents of the letter, but says that Insabance Johnson wrote he was not guilty and that the guilty man would be found. He said furthermore that he pleaded guilty through the fear of mob violence and wanted to get into a safe place as soon as possible. He did not mention the Lembergers.

2,000 CHINESE TROOPS REFUSE TO OBEY ORDERS

American Families Reach Chung-King—Modern Soldiers Scorn Viceroy—Fear Spread of Revolt.

Chung-King, China, Sept. 16.—A number of American families from Kiating and elsewhere have arrived here safely from Cheng Tu.

Two thousand modern troops have refused to join in the siege of Cheng Tu at the command of the viceroy. The authorities fear to force the rebels to join the rebels.

The rebels are armed only with ancient weapons. They demand the release of the members of the railway league and will raise the siege when this condition is met. The uprising was begun by the league as a protest against railroad extensions financed by foreigners.

Pekin, Sept. 16.—Tsien Chunsuan, the most ruthless fighting leader, at the emperor's command, has been ordered to proceed to Hze-Chuen, where the government now admits the situation is dangerous. Tsien Chunsuan is now in Shanghai, but is making preparations to proceed immediately to the scene of the rebellion. He is a merciless foe to insurrection and in 1902 and 1904 personally led a savage army that put down the Kwang-Si rebellion.

The director general of the Hankow-Canton and Hankow-Sze-Chuen railroad has been ordered to devise means at once to raise the siege of Cheng Tu. The British gunboat Widggon has left Su-Pu for Kiating.

London, Sept. 16.—A message received at the headquarters of the China Inland Mission here states that all the missionaries of that body and the buildings in the province of Sze-Chuen, China, are safe, according to the best information obtainable by telegraph at Shanghai.

ANNA BARE, ETHEL MCCABE, ANNA HARRISON. ESCAPED FROM ILLINOIS INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL BECAUSE OF ALLEGED ABUSE.

Chicago, Ill.—The three young girls who escaped on September 3rd from the Illinois Industrial school have been the principal witnesses for the juvenile court Commission investigating the conditions of this school. Considerable criticism has been made of the management and charges of alleged abuse of inmates of the school have been constantly reiterated. In an effort to get at the bottom of affairs, the juvenile court Commission has undertaken a strenuous investigation under the direction of County Attorney Francis S. Wilson. Many stories of neglect and shabby treatment at the Park Ridge school have been told by girl inmates; some are alleged to have been shut in dungeons and others to have been treated with cruelty.

THINK of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles — mental because of disfiguration, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. B, Boston, will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on Skin and Scalp Treatment.

BROKE A LEG.

Manager—How's the new fullback coming along?
Captain of the Football Team—Oh, he can't kick.

WHAT HE LEARNED.

Papa—Well, Tommy, what did you learn at Sunday school today?
Tommy (aged 5)—That I've got to sell four tickets for the fair, give fifty cents to the missionary society and that Jonah swallowed the whale.

HE WAS WISE

Mrs. Denton Holmes—I've decided to give you a birthday gift this year, Denton.
Mr. Denton Holmes—All right; just tell me what it shall be, and I'll buy it on my way home tonight.

Not to Be Denied.

"How do you like our country?" asked the native who had been showing the Englishman around.
"Oh, it's a beastly large tract of land."

"Don't you think the American cities are pretty fine?"
"Beastly ugly, dirty places, I've found them."

"I suppose you were surprised at the prosperous look of the country generally?"
"It's a ghawstly looking place along the railways."

"But the farms? I suppose you noticed them as you passed through. This is the greatest farming country on earth."

"Beastly dreary looking things—your farms."

"Well, you'll have to admit that we have a lot of first-class postoffices, anyhow."

His Weakness.

I know a gentle physician. "Who wouldn't hurt a fly, but he would steal 'most anything whose owner wasn't by."

Long Look in Store.

"Pa, what's a triquet?"
"You study botany, son?"
"Yes, pa."
"Then look it up in your glossary of botanical terms."

How He Voted.
At a church court a pastor had to vote on a delicate question. Either way would ostracize some of his flock. So he voted "non liquit," which is equivalent to asking to be excused. The next day a country delegate was asked how this pastor had voted on the vexed question. He said: "The man did not seem pleased. In fact, he voted that he did not like it."

Where Morphine Finds Victims.
Of a hundred unselected cases of morphine addiction 50 were found to be physicians, 20 physicians' wives and widows, ten nurses, six druggists, four dentists and ten laymen, making 90 per cent. closely connected with the medical profession.—Nurse's Journal.

DAIRYING IN THE
Round Lake Country

Is a money maker for any one who wishes to take it up.
The abundance of rain, the climate, the creameries and cheese factories, the nearness to good markets and the richness of the soil, all go to make up an ideal condition for dairying.
This land can be bought now at $6.50 to $20.00 per acre and you may take TEN YEARS TO PAY IF YOU CHOOSE.
All things considered, you can not find another country so well favored as is the Round Lake Country.

Harper's Weekly is responsible for the statement that in 1,000 ounces of gold there are 900 ounces of pure gold, 10 ounces of silver, 90 of copper, and about three tons of iron, a large farm, two automobiles, six fashionable bonnets and plans for a country home.

Germany's State Woods.
The state woods of Germany cover 10,000,000 acres and give employment to 100,000 persons.

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WAUTERS
COPYRIGHT, 1910 BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

The words of this book of the "No Man's Land" are so easily struck the coast pretty thoroughly. It struck me how all-fired easy it would be to establish a depot for the reception of goods on one of these little islands hereabouts—or even at some rotting point on the mainland. Then one could ship the stuff over by any old unlikely tramp, transship it to a small vessel at some agreed point off the coast, and stow it away for distribution practically at one's own convenience. With such a central station, the stuff could be smuggled to the railroad through any number of small harbors—a trunkful here, a trunkful there, all disguised as passenger baggage; and these waters are so thick with small craft that their comings and goings attract practically no attention. . . . Plausible, feasible—yes.

"Ingenious, certainly."
"To cut it short, I finally satisfied myself that the schooner employed for the transshipment was the fisherman that, as you saw, preferred my room to my company. I took a chance there, like a fool—lucky to get off with the whole skin. But by the time I hit the water I felt pretty sure they had some sure-enough good reason for not wanting any strangers hanging round."

"I'd think you justified in assuming that much."
"The worst of it was, that mishap made me a marked man; I'd been a wee little too indiscreet. For a while I thought I'd have to fade into the background and let one of my brother albatrosses pick up the job. You can fancy how that would have galled. Fortunately you offered yourself."

"I like that," Coast commented.
"Anyway, my magnificent imagination offered you to me. Coastland pursued without loss of countenance, "I began to see how easy it would be to sneak along the coast as your crew—unmolested, unsuspected. You seemed to have only the vaguest idea of what you wanted to do, when you wanted to cruise. And I'd begun to suspect myself of failure of the parts of speech if I couldn't busily talk you into going where I wanted to—No Man's Land, Muskeget, Tucker's neck, Chappaquiddick, or wherever."

"I'm ready to certify you're qualified to talk the hind legs off the domestic mule," Coast averred with enthusiasm.

"Don't worry; I'm a marked man. Rather cheap, that—what?"

"Extremely."
"Your fault: you fed it to me. I'm beginning to think you must be the only original, perfectly stunted mascot. Since we met the very stars have seemed to battle in their course for me. Even the fog helped—shunting us off to No Man's Land."

"Yes—"
"I had no particular notion of investigating that island first of all; but a number of circumstances made me suspect we were in its neighborhood. I had first read it out that the variation of the magnetized compass must have carried us southwest, for one thing; and the absence of fog signals made me think we must have got well south of the main-traveled routes; finally, I knew that, once south of Devil's Bridge, the set of the tide would make us out toward No Man's Land. So, when we ran aground and I went ashore, leaving you asleep, I wasn't surprised to recognize the place."

"You could—in that fog?"
"You an excellent memory, and had visited the island a good many times on fishing trips when I was a boy in those parts. That abandoned fishing village made me sure of my ground; in the days when the bluefish ran in these waters there used to be quite a settlement there. . . . However, I'm fortunate in the possession of a sense of locality something above the average, and though it was pitch dark, at least, and thick as mud, I wasn't afraid of losing my way. So I struck out boldly, and by daylight I made a number of interesting discoveries. . . . Hello! . . . Good morning, Twenty-seven!"

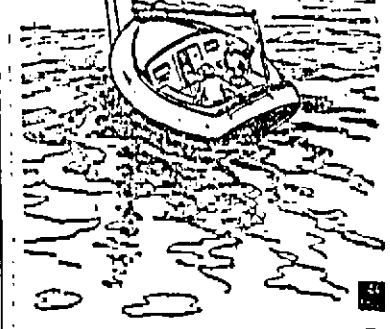

"The little man got up and bowed profoundly, as to a valued acquaintance, to a black can badly conspicuous-ously numbered "27," swimming past in a grey wash of sea to starboard. "Some navigators," that! Coastland observed complacently. Coast watched Applayard shift the spoke until the Echo swung upon a corker at a salient angle to that which she had been holding. "And now where?"

Applayard looked up from the binoculars. "Noth by east," he said abstractedly; then, rousing: "Quick's little, and it please you, I venture to recommend the spot. It's quiet, retired, charmingly salubrious; quite a cozy corner for a day's loaf."

"Loaf!" exclaimed Coast in exasperation.

"Tut," said the little man in a tone

"We Ought Pick Up That Buoy Before Long—"

of mild reproach; "and again tut. If soons I will a tale unfold that'll shed a heap of light upon the plot of this issue of the Half-Dime Library. Know you not that Desmond the Dackland Detective is on the scent?"

"You were on the point of making some interesting discoveries," Coast prompted patiently.

"To be sure, I . . . As I was about to say, I felt my way along, lost it, and presently stumbled onto what seemed a pretty raw slice of melodrama. . . . The first thing I struck for was the farmhouse. Last I heard of the island, it was inhabited by a single family, a farmer, his wife and a couple of kids. Must've been a bit lonesome, but they didn't seem to mind. They do say the man once petitioned the State Legislature to build a school-house on the island to educate his offspring, on the ground that as a taxpayer he was entitled to the school for at the expense of the Commonwealth. (Shrewd customer: as I recall it he nominated himself for the job of janitor and his wife to be school-mistress, both on salary! . . .)

I had it in mind to pump him, you see, but somehow I missed the farmhouse, the first cast. And when I pulled up to take soundings I heard a curious sort of noise—singular in that locality, at least: one of those noises that, once heard, is never forgotten; as nearly as I can describe it, a sort of ripping crash—very irregular in duration and much muffled by distance and fog. I picked up my ears and tried to mark down the quarter it came from. Then I followed it up as best I could. After two or three false turns I fell over what seemed to be a wire stay, groped round and found a mast. The noise had stopped by this time, but I knew what had made it without doubt; that mast was an aerial, and I'd been listening to somebody operating a wireless station. Next thing, I made out a glow of light that led me to a window. By now I didn't feel interested and laying very low.

"The window was open—it was warm enough for that—and because of the fog I could stand quite near and see what was taking place inside without being seen. . . . It was a goodish sized room, one of three under a single roof, by all appearances, and stuffed full of apparatus of various kinds. There was a big gas-motor sitting away at one end, running a dynamo. Right near the window was a heavy table with all the paraphernalia of a wireless station.

"There was a young man standing right by the table, evidently just out of his chair. He was taking off the telephone headpiece when I first saw him. He looked to be under thirty, and wore red hair and a good coat of sunburn; and he was mad clean through—mad as another man who was standing just inside a doorway leading to another room. That door was closed. The second man was evidently just out of bed; he had a crash bathrobe belted round him, with his pyjamas showing underneath, and heedy, naked ankles running into bed-room slippers. They were having it hot and heavy, ripping out at each other straight from the shoulder."

"I don't know—didn't hear—what started the row, and it ended just after I came into hearing. The younger chap was saying—had a bit of a brogue: 'Don't let that trouble you, Mister Black. I'll have you know I wired for a relief last night, while you were at dinner, and the minute he sets foot on this damned island, I leave it; nor will I be resting till I've turned in my report at the home office. Put that in your pipe, now.'"

"Black (as he called him) seemed to lose control of himself for an instant. He sort of lurched forward, his hands working as if he was going to throw himself at the younger man's throat; then he caught up, thinking better of it, as if he knew the other fellow had grabbed his chair by the back and stood ready to brain him with it; which he couldn't have known, for it turned out he was blind. 'If I had my sight,' he said, 'and could lay hands on you, Power, I'd break every bone in your body.'"

"That staked Mr. Power to an ugly laugh—the kind of a laugh that's calculated to make the other chap's blood boil. 'Divvy a doubt of that,' says he; 'but well you know I'd stop at nothing to protect myself against a brute like you, Mr. Black. And what's more (I thought he tried to hold his tongue, but couldn't; this last seemed fairly to burst out of him) 'I warn you if ever again I see you lay finger on that unhappy woman, your wife, I'll murder you with the first weapon that comes handy. Remember that.'"

"Black was white with rage by this time; I don't think he could have held it much longer. As it happened, just then the door behind him opened, and a woman in a dressing-gown stepped into the room. She was ghastly pale, frightened to death, but otherwise just about the prettiest woman I ever laid eyes on. She said just one word in a pitiful voice—'Douglas'—and touched her husband's arm; but I saw her eyes were praying Power to go. He saw it too.

"'Very well, then,' he said with a little bow to the woman. 'I'll be going now.'"

"And you needn't come back," said the man he called Black. 'I'll do without you until your successor comes.'"

"That suits me to a T," says Power. 'Good morning, Mrs. Black; I'm sorry we woke you up.'"

"Black listened to his footsteps, with that weird expression the deaf and blind have, for some seconds; then he had lost the sound of them; either he shook himself and said to the woman in a pretty steady voice, considering how hot he had just been: 'Get back to bed, Kate. I'll stay up the rest of the night. That matter's settled; you needn't worry any more.' I thought his voice sounded not unkind, but it was plain his temper ruled the man.

"His wife hesitated, but seemed afraid to cross him. She said something I didn't catch, and went back, closing the door.

"I was of two minds, whether to follow Power (if I could) or wait and see what next, and while I was debating it, Black returned, pulling on his coat. He'd managed to get into his clothing in a surprisingly short time. He went straight to the door, jerked it open, and slammed out, taking the same path as Power. I followed, judging my distance at discretion.

"The path led us directly to the farmhouse. Unfortunately I was a bit overcautious, and so permitted Black to get too far ahead. By the time I caught up, something had happened I didn't quite see through, at first. I heard the gate creak behind Black, then his footsteps as he paced across the stoop, and an instant later voices followed by a sound of shuffling, scuffling feet. But when I found him again he was alone—sitting alone in the kitchen, the only lighted room in the house. He had drawn a chair up to the table and sat square to it, his feet solidly on the floor, his hands spread out flat. I could see him quite plainly through the open door. He just sat there, staring at the blank wall opposite (of course, he couldn't see anything, for that matter) and never moved a muscle through what seemed to me an eternity.

"I darsay this lasted over ten minutes; it seemed hours. Then suddenly it came—what we'd both been waiting for—like a thunderclap for unexpectedness, only more awful. I fancied I heard, first, a thin, far shout; at any rate, Black threw back his head, as if he had heard something. The next instant the air seemed to shudder with the most terrible, indescribably howling scream of mortal agony."

"Then silence again—nothing more. Beyond that preliminary start, Black hadn't moved. He sat on, just as I was, though he understood as well as I, and better, what had happened off there in the darkness; that Power, suspecting Black's intentions, had made a break to get away by boat, but had been overhauled by somebody instructed by Black—overhauled and murdered. . . . And he could sit there, unstartling, with that on his conscience. . . .

"After a while I heard something moving in the barnyard and dodged back into hiding—into the shadows. Then a man passed between me and the light, like a ghost, trotting along noiselessly. He jogged up to the house and into the kitchen; as he entered, Black's ungrown sharply. The new arrival was a Chinaman—a low-caste coolie, I judged. I couldn't hear what they said—they spoke in undertones—but I managed to catch a word or two, among them 'boat' which fitted in with my suspicions. At once Black got up—heavily as if very tired—and went through the house and out by the front door; I tagged along, of course. He went directly back to the wireless station, sat down at the operating table, and gave another marvelous exhibition of what a blind man can accomplish, with instinct reinforcing the sense of touch.

"He threw in the motor cut-off switch, to begin with, and the motor started on the spark, just as some automobile engines will. Then he monkeyed with the detector for a while, listening. Nothing doing, apparently—though he may have been getting the range for New York. The next thing, he disconnected the receiving apparatus, threw the current in through the starting box and primary switch, and began calling the New York office of the Standard Wireless, stopping now and then to listen for their response. Presently that came through, and he told 'em to stand ready to take an important message for Voorhis, the second vice-president; they were to get him on the telephone at once—wake him up and insist on an instant answer. . . . You'll have gathered that I number in the list of my many and varied accomplishments the ability to read Morse by ear; once upon a time I was a regular telegraph operator.

"The message was: 'Power has left without warning, taking boat to row to Vineyard. Absence just discovered. Send trustworthy substitute immediately. When may I expect him?' All quiet here; island fog-bound."

"The reply came through within twenty minutes—which was, pretty quick work. Of course I couldn't hear it; I only knew it was being received.

The Strongest Creature.

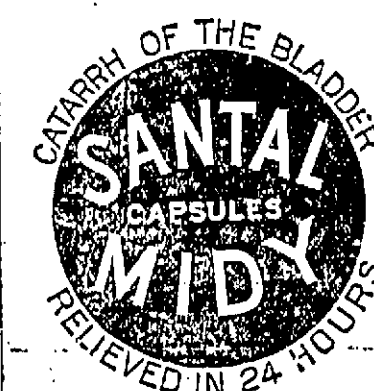

In proportion to its size and weight the beetle is probably the strongest of all known living things. It is claimed by the authorities that if an elephant were as strong in proportion to its weight as a beetle it would easily be able to overturn the biggest skyscraper in the world. The beetle is followed closely by some ants and the mole is not far behind.—New York American.

ANSWERS EVERY CALL
Janesville People Have Found That This is True.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench.

A little cause may hurt the kidneys. Spells of backache often follow. Or some irregularity of the urine.

A certain remedy for such attacks.

A medicine that answers every call.

Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific.

Thousands of people rely upon it.

Here is one case:

W. H. Smith, 336 Euclid Ave., Detroit, Wis., says: "I have no reason to alter my opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, publicly expressed some years ago. I still consider this remedy an excellent one for kidney complaint. When I was suffering from backache and pains in my loins, I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me and improved my condition in every way. My experience convinced me that Doan's Kidney Pills possess great curative powers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
